Overview

Impact on governance and anti-corruption

- The Integrity Summit highlighted 10 public servants, transforming perceptions of the public sector and inspiring change through integrity.
- CivActs addressed the needs of the Yu-guelito community through feedback and community-led action to address systemic gaps in service delivery.

Lessons learned:

- Underserved and structurally marginalized communities often go unheard. Listening to them and engaging them in participatory processes that allow for their voices to be heard and their needs to be considered to inform action plans and for them to actively participate in the creation and implementation of such plans is a game-changer. It ensures that communities take ownership of the changes being created, raising awareness of the importance of their role as active and engaged citizens, increasing their commitment, and rebuilding the trust within community members. There is a thirst to speak up, to get involved; they just lacked the mechanisms and the platforms to do so.
- In short, we witnessed the importance of listening and co-creating with communities to achieve sustainable development and long-term impact.
- Public servants not only find value in being recognized for their integrity and their above-and-beyond contributions, but they also have a thirst to connect with each other, to share what they know, to build community, to share best practices and to co-create not only with their peers but with civil society—organized or not. They are eager to spark important conversations around integrity, accountability, and transparency.

By the Numbers

In Our Own Words

INSPIRATIONAL QUOTES: (INTEGRITY SUMMIT)

"Seeing the women we defend regain their freedom and rights is the greatest reward I can have".

SUSANA MONTAÑEZ, WINNER IN THE SUSTAINABILITY CAMPAIGN

"This is not just recognition for me but for those who believe that transparency is the path to a better future".

RAÚL PARRA, WINNER IN THE YOUTH CAMPAIGN

INSPIRATIONAL QUOTES: (CIVACTS)

"The collected information and the findings from the surveys clearly reflect what the community feels, thinks, and needs. The action plan recommendations that stemmed from the findings gave us clarity on what we need to prioritize, and they informed our work plan that has already yielded results in the implementation of new community activities and in our negotiations with the government."

YOLANDA CERVANTES, COMMUNITY LEADER

INSPIRATIONAL QUOTES: (CIVACTS)

"I would like this community to look like I once dreamed when I first arrived here: I expected to see a beautiful neighborhood, full of plants and trees, where we all get along, I wanted to see the children playing without worry and full of opportunities ahead of them. I think it is important for all the inhabitants of this community to have the freedom to express ourselves without fear, to have the space and platform to say what we like and what we don't like, and for us to be heard. That is why I decided to join this project. When I first heard about it, it also seemed very interesting to me; it sounded like it would be something good for our community because it was exactly what we needed: an opportunity to express our needs and concerns."

ERISELDA MÉNDEZ, CFA

"I would love to see a safer Yuguelito for the people here to have more opportunities. There are very smart people here who just need an opportunity to be able to thrive. I would love for my community to prosper as it once did. The working class, the driving force of the country, must be heard. And they must be heard not only in this working class community; these types of exercises must be done throughout the country. It is amazing that these types of activities exist because it is important for people to be heard. Personally, when I was growing up here, there were people that guided me, that taught me, that involved me in activities that enabled my growth as a good human being. The opportunity to listen to the people of my community and being able to be that person that someone once was for me is what motivated me to join this project that allowed me to listen and learn".

JUAN PABLO, CFA

"In this community, we need to pay attention to the problem of drug addiction troubling our young people and to the insecurity issues that stem from this. We also need more streetlights, access to clean water, and better roads, as not all streets are paved. I joined this project not only because I had the spare time due to my age, as I can no longer work, but also because I wanted to listen to my people, and to contribute to the improvements that need to be done here, and to see how we can, as community members, to take part in the creation of such improvements. It is important that people are listened to. As citizens, we are not used to having a voice or a vote in the matters that concern us. Being heard is important to create an environment of mutual respect and healthy coexistence."

Project 1: Integrity Icon and Integrity Summit

MAIN RESULTS:

- Recognition of public servants in the Youth and Sustainability categories.
- Inspiration to replicate integrity practices nationwide.

LESSONS LEARNED:

During the Integrity Summit, we reflected on the lessons learned from the past Integrity Icon campaigns and explored how to build on that experience. We recognized that our work goes beyond acknowledging exemplary public servants for their integrity—it's about capturing their insights and making their successful projects replicable nationwide. We learned that in order to truly address the challenges and gaps within transparency, accountability, access to information, civic participation, and inclusion, we needed to foster ongoing conversations that delve deeper into the real-world impact of their initiatives.

Project 2: Civic Action Teams (CivActs)

MAIN RESULTS:

- Identification of key community needs in Yuguelito.
- Implementation of participatory strategies to address priorities.

KEY DATA POINTS:

- 255 surveys were completed.
- Training of 11 community frontline agents (CFAs)
- Workshop and engagement of 10 community committee coordinators.

Additional Highlights

IMPACT STORIES:

Our Integrity Icon Campaign inspired Dexisonline and the Prointegridad program, which focuses on promoting integrity within the private sector. Together, we developed the campaign based on our methodology, adapted specifically to address challenges in the private sector. We are encouraged by the fact that our work has inspired efforts to extend the conversation on integrity beyond the public sector.

Theory of Action in Practice

UNLIKELY NETWORKS:

Partnerships with community leaders in Yuguelito ensured deeper engagement and co-creation.

POSITIVE NARRATIVE AND UNLIKELY NETWORKS:

At the Integrity Summit, we closed the circle of interconnection between two of our programs when Susana Montañez received the Integrity Icon award—having been the one who, alongside Dolores de León, fought for her freedom. Dolores mobilized the community that Susana serves at the Public Defender's Office in Nuevo León, gathering nearly a thousand votes in the process.

Our theory of action comes to life through the convergence of unlikely networks and positive narratives. The story of Susana and Dolores, which connects the role of a songwriter in the Voice2Rep program with the Integrity Icon recognition, is an inspiring example of how legal practices can be addressed and transformed through a gender perspective defense.

When Dolores de León was unjustly incarcerated, Susana committed to designing a defense strategy that not only secured her release but also spurred the creation of the Women's Defense Unit in the state. Although the prosecution appealed and the case escalated to the federal level, Susana emerged victorious again, setting two historic precedents for gender justice in Mexico.

Meanwhile, while still incarcerated, Dolores joined Voice2Rep, a program that uses music and positive narratives as tools to foster democratic practices. Singer-songwriter and sociologist Leiden Gomis created and led a pilot adapted for incarcerated women called “Volver al corazón,” allowing participants to compose collective testimonial songs that narrated their experiences and transformed art into a powerful medium to raise awareness about gender justice and the legal system in Mexico.

Once she regained her freedom, Dolores nominated Susana for the Integrity Icon Sustainability campaign, recognizing her dedication and commitment to justice. Susana received the highest number of votes, establishing her as the campaign winner and highlighting her work in transforming legal practices and serving incarcerated women and their families. This recognition reaffirms the mission she continues to pursue to achieve a more equitable and responsive justice system.

After the ceremony at the Integrity Summit, Susana made a video call to Dolores to share the good news and thank her for the nomination. During the call, Alemar Contreras—a lawyer and finalist from the Integrity Icon Youth campaign who works at the Council of the Judiciary of the Yucatán State Judicial Power—was present. Alemar told Dolores that, thanks to her, she had met Susana and affirmed that they would look for ways to collaborate in the future.

At the intersection of these initiatives, Voice2Rep amplified the voices of women affected by the justice system, while Integrity Icon highlighted the fundamental role of ethical public servants. Together, these stories embody the power of uniting unlikely networks and positive narratives to drive systemic change and advance gender equity.
